Charlie's Place is a nonprofit drug and alcohol rehab center serving medically indigent clients. Substance abuse touches almost every life in America in some way or another.

- 22.5 million Americans aged 12 or over were classified with substance dependence or abuse in 2004.
- as many as 74 percent of Americans said in 2005 that addiction to alcohol has some impact on them at some point in their lives, whether it was their own personal addiction, that of a friend or family member, or another experience with addiction.
- Access to drug and alcohol treatment can save the community 7 times the amount spent on treatment by reducing the other costs associated with addiction. For example, $1583 spent on treatment has a cost benefit savings to the community of nearly $11,487 in future costs from medical expenses, lost earning potential, lost productivity, crime, and other social consequences.

People who are in recovery can and do rejoin their families, jobs, and their lives in the community.
